CODLING MOTH.

Of all the insects that infest and prey upon the apple none is causing greater loss and damage than the codling moth, more familiarly known as the "apple worm". The actual loss sustained by Kentucky fruit growers is hardly appreciated, as most of the wormy fruit drops off prematurely, and is not observed, but it is safe to say that over fifty per cent. of all the apples raised in the state are infested with the larvae of the codling moth.

The mature insect belongs to a class of insects commonly known as millers. The moth is grayish brown in appearance and usually flies at night about the time the young fruits are forming. The female deposits her eggs singly at the calyx end of the fruit and on the nearby leaves and branches. The individual egg upon the leaf or fruit looks very much like a small white blister and is smaller than the head of a pin. The number of eggs laid by a single female ranges from sixty to seventy. The eggs hatch in from five to ten days after they are laid. As soon as the worms hatch they crawl to the nearest apple and usually eat its way through the calyx or blossom end after remaining in the apple from twenty to twenty-five days the worm eats its way out through the side of the apple and builds a cocoon under a loose strip of bark or service in the trunk.

In order to control this insect it is best to spray just after the blossoms drop and before the calyx cup closes. If the spraying is put off, the calyx cup closes and it becomes impossible to deposit any poison within it. The calyx cup remains open from seven to ten days after the blossoms fall and the spray may be applied during this time. An effect should be made to spray immediately after the petals fall and not wait, as bad weather may hinder one from spraying later on.

Arsenate of lead and Paris green are practically the only poisons used in controlling the codling moth. Arsenate of lead is safer to use because of its superior adhesiveness and because it is not as liable to burn the foliage. To get the best result one should use three pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water. Paris green should be used at the rate of five to eight ounces to fifty gallons of water. Where the poisons are used alone two pounds of lime be added in order to avoid danger of burning the foliage. Paris green or arsenate of lead should preferably be mixed with lime-sulfur or with Bordeaux and so applied. If this is done it will save an extra spraying that is necessary in order to keep fungus diseases in such as apple scab, bitter rot, etc., in control.

To get the best results it may be necessary to make a second application from ten days to two weeks later and for the second brood from the middle of July to the first of August. These sprayings are important.

Care should be taken to cover the tree in a thorough manner. Try to place a particle of the poisoned spray in the open calyx cup of every apple. To prevent further appearance of the codling moth, fallen fruits should be destroyed, either by gathering or by allowing hogs to run in the orchard. Detailed information will be furnished free by the Extension Division of the Experiment Station.

IN MEMORY.

Death has again visited the home of our brother and sister, J. W. and Elizabeth Moore and took from them Milton Moore, who was in the bloom of life. He was only 22 years old and a few days. He departed this on March 16, 1913 at about 9 o'clock on Sunday morning. Some one said, Milton, you are dying. He said, Amen. Shock hands with all present and had them to promise to meet him in Heaven. Milton's body is returning to the dust, but his spirit has returned to God, who gave it.

Well, Milton has paid the debt we all must pay. God has taken him from us, but our loss is Heaven's gain, for I believe that Milton is hard by the eternal throne of God. If we ever expect to see Milton in Heaven we must prepare ourselves to make Heaven our home. Weep not for him dear friends for you will see Milton no more until the resurrection morning.
